Presentation

Emana offers you again, the opportunity to experience and participate in the world and proposal of Arawana Hayashi. In this workshop we will deepen in the presence and authenticity, an integrated relationship between the body, the mind and the concrete context.

In these disruptive times we need, more than ever, to practice leadership based on conscious presence. There are very few chances to learn these techniques in a practical and effective way from an internationally known professional.

Arawana's original and unique work combines two methodologies that will be experienced in the workshop.

Social Presencing Theater: The Art of Making a true Move

Content

Social Presence Theatre (SPT) is an emerging social art form that explores the creative potential of Theory U and Presencing to cultivate the inner condition of facilitators, leaders and change agents. It integrates art, body presence, dialogue, quietness and social change towards collective action based on awareness, breaking down limiting habits to learn from the future as they emerge.

The word theatre comes from the Greek thea, which means “the act of seeing”. SPT allows individuals, teams, organizations and communities to see and feel themselves, making visible the dynamics and relationships that are “stuck” in systems and offering useful tools to achieve their flow and reach their highest potential.

Metodology

“Embodied Presence; the Art of Making a true Move”, the methodology created by the artist herself many years ago, explores authenticity, an integrated relationship between the body, the mind and the environment.

Arawana invites participants to discover their natural creativity while she guides them through a gentle process of cultivating a multidimensional attention to body, space and moment (Mindfulness -Awareness -Nowness).

Through these non-verbal exercises, new answers to the challenges of the speed and fragmentation of contemporary life are discovered.

This methodology provides a unique kinesthetic learning experience that strengthens personal confidence, creative collaborations, teamwork, group communication and leadership skills.

Teached by

ARAWANA HAYASHI

Co-founder of the Presencing Institute, Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT), where she works with Otto Scharmer's team (Theory U) and developer of the "Social Presencing Theater" methodology. Arawana Hayashi is part of the faculty at Naropa University in Colorado (USA), where she is involved in the Authentic Leadership Degree. She also teaches in ALIA programmes at the Shambhala Institute for Authentic Leadership in Halifax, Canada, and collaborates in seminars with leading leadership experts such as Peter Block, Bill Joiner, Julio Olalla, Mark Gerzon and Michael Jones, among others. Her performing dimension is supported by her parallel experience as a dancer, choreographer and performing arts teacher.
